Autodesk AutoCAD is a widely used computer-aided drafting (CAD) application, first developed by Stephen W. Davis and released by Autodesk Inc. in 1982 as a desktop app for microcomputers with internal graphics controllers. History [edit] The first version of AutoCAD was released in December 1982 as part of a bundle with a four-year, no-cost subscription to the AutoDesk Suite of products, which included AutoCAD, Inventor, Legends, and Digital Draw. The bundled prices were $2,295 (excluding shipping) and $4,650 (excluding shipping). AutoCAD was the most widely used CAD package available in the United States during the mid-1980s. The latest version of AutoCAD was released in December 2011. AutoCAD 2014 has over 50 new features, including a new, easier to learn user interface, and support for 3D printing, surveyors, and arc generation. Units of measurement [edit] AutoCAD supports the Imperial and Metric systems of measurement. In the Imperial system, the unit of measurement is the metre (m) and the unit of length is the inch (in). In the Metric system, the unit of measurement is the millimetre (mm) and the unit of length is the centimetre (cm). The name "AutoCAD" is also used to refer to certain parts of the program and its variants, for example to AutoCAD Architecture and AutoCAD Map 3D. He was previously the Illinois House of Representatives for the 24th district from 1975 to 1996. Early life and education Papalia was born in Chicago, Illinois. He graduated from New Trier High School in 1969. In 1971, he graduated with a Bachelor of Arts in Economics from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. He later received a Master of Arts in Economics from the University of Chicago. He is married to the former Carolyn Beckwith. He has also served as chair of the Senate Committee on Regulated Industries. On September 11, 2005, Papalia announced that he would run in the 2006 Senate elections for the 40th district, where former State Senator Dale Sharp announced that he would not seek reelection. The decision would have given an eight-year incumbent of the seat a major advantage over the relatively inexperienced State Representative Pat Dowell, and would have given the Democrats control of both houses of the General Assembly for the first time since 1989. Personal life Papalia currently lives in the South Loop. References External a1d647e40b
